

Can I fly while I am pregnant?

Yes you can fly while pregnant. If you're traveling after your eighth month, it's a good idea to check with your doctor to be sure travel is not restricted. While flying doesn't usually cause problems during pregnancy, in some cases, traveling by air has been known to cause complications or premature labor. If you're pregnant, you should consult your physician before flying.

By traveling with Frontier, pregnant women acknowledge and accept these risks.